Lake rule No. 1: Buy more beer

Labor Day weekend is here again, and with it come the usual suspects. Your buddy rocking those way-too-skinny white jeans one last time, that one couple who decides to get married, thus ruining the weekend for everyone, and there are about 25 parties all falling on the same day. Usually, my move is to head up to Lake Cora, Mich., to my homeboy Kahle's for some good ol'-fashioned lake house raging. A lot of people seem to be on that same wave this year, so I thought I'd do everyone a service and drop some lake house etiquette for those fortunate enough to be lake-bound.

Bring more beer

No, seriously. You think you have enough beer? You don't. Take the amount you're thinking of buying and triple it. Buying a dirty 30? Get three of them. Towns with a lot of lake house communities (looking at you, New Buffalo) get jam-packed with city folk like you and me buying all the brews. Stock up at home. Also, when you get there, you're going to be so focused on being outside and being in the water that you'll be in no position to want to leave.

Embrace nature

Take a hike through the woods. Ride an ATV. Get clocked out and sleep outside on the dock. All of these things aren't easily accessible in the city, so take advantage of the outdoors while you have the opportunity. May I suggest a moonlit stroll followed by a gargoyle on a keg?

Get in the water, for Pete's sake

Everyone resents the person who doesn't want to swim, go out on the boat or do anything else water-related. If you can't swim, wear a life jacket. Anyone who laughs at you can eat a brick. Usually, you're with a bunch of close buds who love you anyway. Cast off your ridiculous aversion and get wet.

Save the drama for your mama

There will be inevitable nonsense. Someone will get too drunk and confess his undying affection for someone else's girlfriend, or that one super-aggressive guy from your brother's job will start 'roid raging and put his head through a wall. Set ground rules at the beginning to maximize the fun and minimize the BS. When partying with The Herd, the group I house with (I just made that term up—nice, right?), we keep the mission simple: Everyone should have as much of a good time as humanly possible, we always stop for burgers at Redamaks, and pants are optional.

I hope these tips help you in your lake house conquests. Also, can you seriously tell your buddy he looks like a jagbag in those white jeans? He's embarrassing us all.

GEARHEADS GO THE DISTANCE FOR THEIR TRICKED-OUT RIDES

By Katie Donbavand

FOR REDEYE

Roberto Izquierdo spends hours at a time scouring eBay, but he's not collecting vinyl or out-of-print books. The graphic designer is looking for parts for his bicycle. Make that his third bicycle.

"At first, I didn't want to own a custom bike—I just wanted a simple road bike," he said.

But Izquierdo, 25, of Bridgeport, soon realized he wanted more than an off-the-rack model.

"Knowing that your bike is unique and you picked out the parts yourself—maybe even built it yourself—is the best," he said.

Two more bikes later, Izquierdo is part of a growing community of passionate custom bike aficionados who sometimes spend thousands of dollars tricking out their wheels with everything from leather seats to glitter paint jobs in order to create a riding experience that best suits their pedaling personalities.

Izquierdo's powder-coated, silvery white bike (a custom color, of course) is a source of pride.

"I love owning a custom bike because it's the only one of its kind. No one else has my particular assembly," he said. "It is great knowing that I picked the parts and that they all perform smoothly."

At Get a Grip Cycles, which has two locations in Chicago, the process of customizing a bike takes into account a dizzying list of considerations including a customer's height, weight, age, injury history, range of motion issues, stress and flexibility.

And it's not just the Lance Armstrongs of the world buying these customized bikes.

"Our clients run the full spectrum from 'I'm buying my first bike' to 'I'm buying my dream bike,'" head fit technician Adam Kaplan said.

Get a Grip bikes take four weeks to three months to produce, depending on the complexity of the final product, and the cost ranges from $3,800 to $15,000, Kaplan said.

While that might seem like a lot for the average cyclist, it is possible to get a cool bike with a custom look for less—sometimes as little as $400.

Dottie Brackett went online to get her custom wheels after her cheap bike was stolen in January 2009.

"I couldn't find what I was looking for at any local bike shops, but after some Internet searching, I found the perfect bike," the 29-year-old Roscoe Village lawyer and letsgorideabike.com blogger said. "I bought the frame and then chose all the components I wanted to go on the frame."

Brackett equipped the robin's-egg-blue frame of her Rivendell bike with heart-shaped lugs, aluminum hammered-finish fenders and a Japanese brass bell. It all cost about $2,000, a price Brackett said felt like a lot at the time but served as a long-term investment in her transportation.

"I love owning a custom bike because it suits me perfectly and, as a result, I enjoy riding my bike even more," she said.

Online retailers such as bigshotbikes.com, statebicycle.com and republicbikes.com often offer fun functions that let customers design their dream bikes online. Some even do it in drool-inducing 3-D.

Business at Republic Bike, a Florida-based online retailer that makes bikes that range from $400-$500, has grown "significantly" since it launched in 2008, company president Avery Packs said.

Republic can build a bike to order in as little as two days and deliver it about 90 percent assembled, he said.

To put the demand for custom bikes simply: "A lot of different types of people want a lot of different types of bikes," Packs said.

Though bikes sold through online retailers arrive mostly assembled, some bike owners don't need much time before they're doing their own tinkering at home. That's what happened with Adam Jakubik, 30, of Andersonville.

Jakubik started out working on inexpensive bikes with his father and has since built two bikes for himself and one for his girlfriend.

"My favorite part of having a custom bike is the looks and compliments I get [as I ride by]," he said.

Jakubik said people who know bikes

“My favorite part of having a custom bike is the looks and compliments I get [as I ride by].”

—Adam Jakubik

take note of his latest creation's Mavic Ksyrium wheels and carbon neck, bars and crankset. But most admirers just say it looks cool.

"It's mostly the carbon fiber accents. The way the sun hits it really sets it off," Jakubik said with a smile. "I have three cars, but there is something about biking that keeps bringing me back."

CHERYL KENT

The Chicago Public Library welcomes Cheryl Kent, respected journalist and researcher in the field of civic architecture, as she discusses and signs her book Millennium Park Chicago. The free program takes place on Thursday, Sept. 15 at 6:00 p.m., in the Cindy Pritzker Auditorium (Lower Level) at the Harold Washington Library Center, 400 S. State St. How the park came to be is a story of outsize ambition, luck, political maneuvering and turning obstacles into opportunities as with many of Chicago's architectural and artistic marvels. Kent's lavishly illustrated book is the best general introduction to the park's history and each of its attractions. ## '80's hottie Kelly McGillis remembers 'Top Gun' fondly

"Top Gun" wasn't exactly the film a 20-something Kelly McGillis would have picked for herself back in the mid-1980s, but the film went on to become the biggest box office draw of 1986—taking in more than $176 million.

"Top Gun" became a hit and remains as high-flying as ever. A 25th anniversary edition includes a six-part documentary on the making of the film and interviews with cast and crew.

"I never thought the film would be considered a classic, it was just a fun movie to make," McGillis says. "It had good-looking people and great visuals. It was pure entertainment and a way for people to escape and forget their problems."

Director Tony Scott combined the action of a group of hot shot pilots—played by Tom Cruise, Val Kilmer and Anthony Edwards—with a love story between a cocky pilot, Maverick (Cruise), and his instructor (McGillis).

McGillis, 54, was willing to get a little nostalgic, but generally she looks at the present and future. After taking some time off to raise her two daughters, McGillis has started slowly getting back into acting. She finds most casting directors are surprised to see she's not that same hottie who broke hearts in "Top Gun."

"People in this business are trying to look perpetually 30 years old," she says. "But people get older. I don't want to color my hair. I don't want to do that stuff to try to look younger. I want to be who I am." THE FRESNO BEE

OK Go vs. the Muppets

On YouTube

The Muppets drifted out of coolness when they were relegated to children's entertainment in the '90s. They came back with a vengeance, though, through the magic of YouTube and their hilarious take on Queen's "Bohemian Rhapsody." On the eve of their new big-screen release comes this OK Go rendition of "The Muppet Show" theme song. It's Muppet-tastic, filled with typical Muppet hijinks, propelled into 2011 with "it" band OK Go. Make sure to catch the behind-the-scenes, which is equally entertaining.

El Shaddai: Ascension of the Metatron

Available now, PS3/XB360

Mainstream gaming rarely takes chances these days, a truth which makes a game like "El Shaddai: Ascension of the Metatron" a refreshing change. It's a surreal, arty video game based on the apocryphal book of Enoch about a priest seeking seven fallen angels to prevent a giant flood from destroying mankind. "El Shaddai" is pretty to look at and the game's developers have wisely stripped the usual health meters and score indicators to let us truly enjoy the visuals. Thankfully, it also provides quite a punch with its solid action gameplay.

"You make me feel good, la la la la la" are words to live by any summer, especially in the hands of a dance band as talented as Cobra Starship. Best known for helping to introduce actress Leighton Meester's singing career on 2009's "Good Girls Gone Bad," front man Gabe Saporta is a master of electronic styles, accelerating synthesized bleeps and bloops into natural Top 40 hits. But while Saporta recently trashed Britney Spears for watering down dubstep, a cutting-edge club-music style, Cobra could use her familiar personality.

An environmentalist (Keri Russell) agrees to move in with a superficial millionaire (Will Arnett). Despite the first-rate talent, this Fox series lasted less than one season. So if you missed any or all of it, here's your chance to get caught up with the comedy. Russell brought a lot of charm and Arnett provided plenty of silliness, but it wasn't enough to overcome the bad writing.

Gourmet's Dine Around cheat sheet

By Lisa Arnett

The $150 ticket price to get into Chicago Gourmet, the city's wining-and-dining festival held in Millennium Park on Sept. 23-25, is pretty steep. But if you're hungry, the fest offers a way for you to earn a free one-day ticket by eating your way through local restaurants thanks to the Dine Around program.

Here's how it works: Spend at least $35 dining at five of the participating restaurants from Aug. 29 to Sept 23. Order off the regular menu or go for the special Dine Around prix-fixe menu. Save your receipts and turn them in at the registration desk at Chicago Gourmet to get your one-day pass. To help refine your dining strategy for the next few weeks, here's a look at some of our recommendations. Find the full list of 50-plus restaurants on metromix.com/dinearound.

DOWNTOWN DINNER DATE

Quartino

626 N. State St. 312-698-5000

This Italian small-plates spot in River North is a consistent crowd pleaser, but what makes it a standout on the Dine Around list is its $35 prix-fixe menu for two. Yes, as in two people. For $35 total. The meal features a first course from the soup, salad or wine bar plates menu, a second course of risotto or pasta, a third seafood or meat course and a dessert to wrap up the night. Cheap date, indeed.

PARTY SWEETS

Bittersweet

1114 W. Belmont Ave. 773-929-1100

You could sit down for a meal at this Lakeview bakery, but you also could easily spend your $35 on cakes, tarts and pastries to bring to a pal's end-of-summer backyard barbecue.

SOUTH SIDE TRIP

May Street Cafe

1146 W. Cermak St. 312-421-4442

It's true—most of the Dine Around options are clustered downtown and on the North Side, but May Street Cafe is doing its part to represent restaurants south of Roosevelt. The Pilsen eatery's three-course $35 menu features choices such as jicama and mango salad, steak fajitas and white-chocolate flan.

'Orgy' less fun than it sounds

A Good Old Fashioned Orgy (R)

Eric's dad (Don Johnson) is so selfish: He wants to sell the Hamptons house where his 30-something son (Jason Sudeikis) and his smug friends (Lake Bell, Tyler Labine, Nick Kroll, Lindsay Sloane, Martin Starr) have spent countless summers partying uncontrollably. The only way these people can go out with a bang on Labor Day is to do exactly that. Together.

The verdict: A timid turnoff with few laughs (and less nudity, FYI). These slackers are far too convinced that their arrogant shenanigans are hilarious, and the movie would rather make jokes at the expense of minorities or people with disabilities than develop Eric's supposedly game-changing relationship with his realtor (Leslie Bibb). "Orgy" takes no risks and puts almost nothing at stake; its definition of boundary pushing is flashing a few dildos and saying "butthole." It'd be much more delightfully risqué to see 9-to-5 adults kick off their heels (and the rest of their clothes) than juvenile dopes who already act like kids with unlimited time off grasp at youthful experimentation.

The Debt (R)

Sure, in 1997 Rachel (Helen Mirren) celebrates the release of her daughter's book about when Rachel and other Israeli agents took down a Nazi war criminal. However, let's go to some 30-year-old flashbacks in Berlin (when Rachel is played by the excellent Jessica Chastain and her colleagues are played by Sam Worthington and Martin Csokas) to see if everything in the book checks out. History has a way of editing out certain facts, or so we've heard.

The verdict: Well-crafted and tense but just not believable. That's on the shoulders of a forced love triangle and a far-fetched ending that confuses the need to tell the truth for others' sake with the act of covering your own butt and clearing your conscience.

Northwestern QB Dan Persa is larger than life—and has the bench press numbers to prove it

By Scott Bolohan

FOR REDEYE

Look! Up in the sky! It's a bird! It's a plane! It's ... a giant billboard of Northwestern quarterback Dan Persa!

At least if you drive down the Kennedy Expressway.

Northwestern started a campaign to get Persa Heisman attention by putting up billboards on the Kennedy Expressway and in Bristol, Conn., home of ESPN. The university also sent out 7-pound dumbbells to media members because Persa was named the strongest quarterback in the nation by ESPN's Bruce Feldman.

Last season came to an unfortunate end for Persa after he threw the winning touchdown against Iowa and tore his Achilles tendon, but the senior quarterback has high hopes for this year.

While he remains a long shot for the Heisman Trophy, the humble Persa and his Wildcats are getting some much-deserved attention. RedEye spoke with him during training camp about his newfound expressway celebrity.

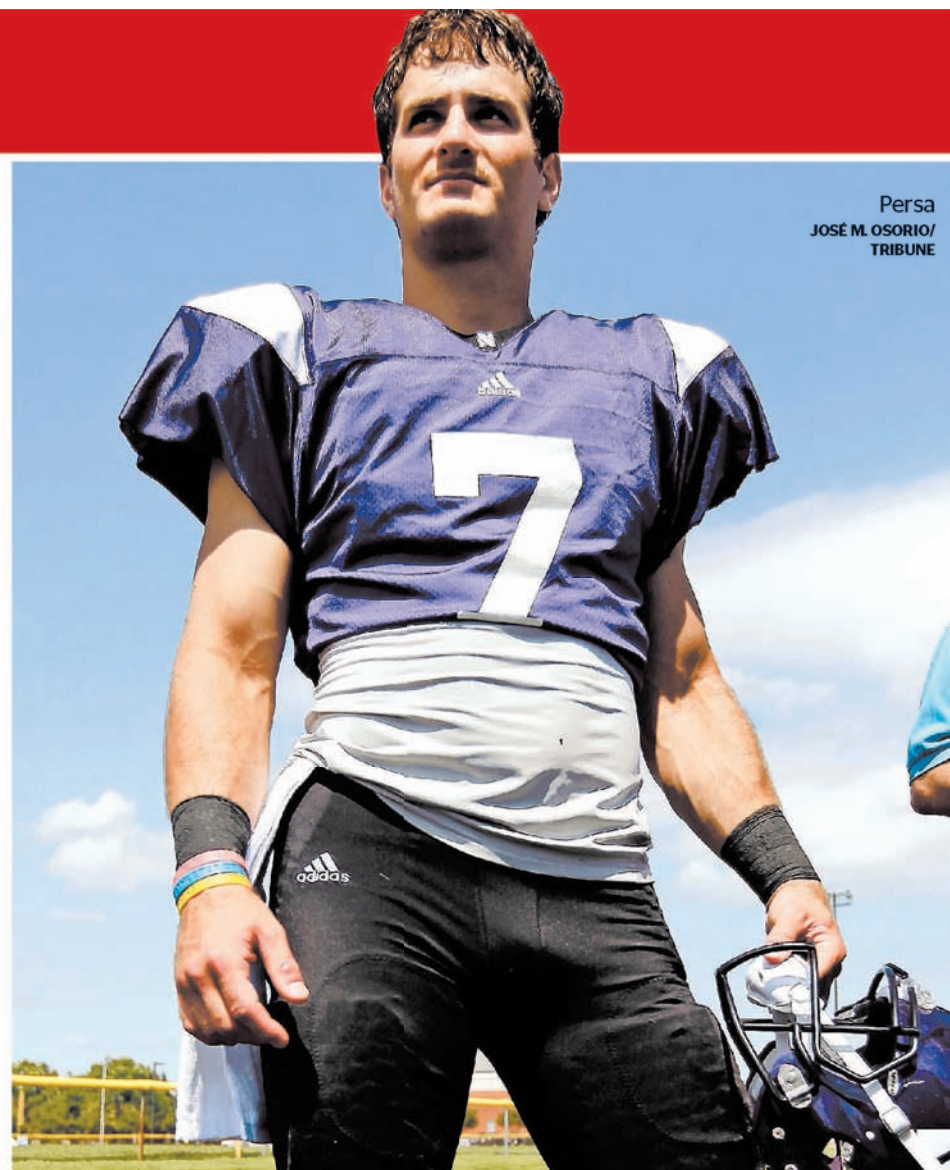

at the same time.

What are you benching these days?

Like 365.

What is it like to be mentioned in the same sentence as the Heisman Trophy?

Honestly, it's an honor, but I don't put too much thought into it. I'm a lot more focused on the season than awards and things that aren't in my control.

JOSÉ M. OSORIO/
TRIBUNE

Is winning the Heisman something you thought about as a kid?

To be honest, I never really did. I never played football to win the Heisman or win awards, it was to play with my team and win.

Have you seen the billboard yet?

No, I haven't.

Do you plan on seeing it?

If I drive by it. I've seen what it looks like, but I haven't seen it in real life.

Is it strange for you to have a billboard? Usually you think of supermodels and movie stars on billboards.

It's a little strange. But if it gets a little more attention for our program, I'm fine with it.

Have your teammates said anything to you?

Yeah, they make fun of me about it.

Enter a number between 1 and 9 in the empty squares. The clues are the numbers in the white circles that give the sum of the solution numbers: above the line are across clues; below the line are down clues. Thus, a clue of 3 will produce a solution of 2 and 1, and a 5 will produce 4 and 1, or 2 and 3, but, of course, which squares they go in will depend on the solution of a clue in the other direction. No digit can be repeated in a solution. Answer at redvechicago.com/puzzles. EDITED BY MICHAEL MEPHAM

Steve Urkel time: Everyone's favorite 'Family Matters' character is baaaaack

By Dana Moran

REDEYE

Belly button-high pants must be back in style. Everybody's favorite '90s nerd, Steve Urkel, has been making quite the pop culture comeback. Or at least his alter-ego, Jaleel White, has. Check out where you'll find the "Family Matters" neighbor—you just might be surprised. DAMORAN@TRIBUNE.COM

Guest-starring

Urkel behind bars? Say it isn't so! Jaleel will guest-star on the Oct. 3 season premiere of "House" as an inmate who meets Hugh Laurie's Dr. House. With their brain power combined, we're sure they'll find a way to break out of the slammer.

Role-playing

Jaleel channeled Urkel's other alter-ego, the smooth-talking Stefan Urquelle, to play Cee Lo in the singer's "Cry Baby" video. He's breakin' hearts and wooing ladies with his sexy dance moves all over the place. Urkel was only really good at dancing like Forrest Gump—though his plaid pants did make it into the video.

Name droppin'

Though he's plowing new pastures with Jay-Z as The Throne these days, Kanye West's "My Beautiful Dark Twisted Fantasy" is an album that won't soon be forgotten. And who showed up on the very first track? Urkel, of course! On "Dark Fantasy," 'Ye raps: "Too many Urkels on your team/that's why your wins low." Oooo, clever burn!

And a throwback ...

Jaleel makes a blink-and-you'll-miss-him appearance in 2006's "Dreamgirls" as a talent booker. Who knew Jennifer Hudson would become more famous than him? Err ... probably a lot of people.

Thanks, Cyndi

Girls just wanna have fun—and help people in need. According to Zap2it, singer Cyndi Lauper, who long has been an advocate for LGBT rights, is going to open a homeless shelter for New York's homeless youth. "Our primary goal is to provide a physically and emotionally safe and supportive environment that will empower our young residents to be the self-loving, happy and successful individuals they were meant to be," Lauper said in a press release. The name of the shelter? True Colors, which also is the name of her 1986 hit single.

Hawthorne cut

It's been a bad couple of weeks for Jada Pinkett Smith (below). On the heels of rumors that she and hubby Will Smith were on the brink of divorce comes the news that TNT has canceled "Hawthorne," the medical drama in which she stars with Marc Anthony, after three seasons. The last episode aired Aug. 15.

"Like any good, closeted lesbian in the seventies, I developed a raging crush on Ron Howard from 'Happy Days.'"

—Jane Lynch, in her new memoir "Happy Accidents."

Free JT

Just in case his fans have forgotten, Justin Timberlake still can sing. The "Friends With Benefits" star played his second free show in 24 hours at New York City's Irving Plaza on Thursday night, people.com reports. "For the record, I'm not trying to be a serious actor," JT joked at one point. Timberlake was there to support FreeSol, whose album is out on his Tennman Records label, and who played a full set before his performance, according to People.

Too soon?

That was quick. T.I. was back in federal custody Friday in Atlanta, less than a day after his Wednesday release from federal prison in Arkansas. Seems the Federal Bureau of Prisons had a problem with the luxury bus used by T.I., born Clifford Harris Jr., to get to the Atlanta halfway house where he was supposed to spend the final month of his 11-month probation-violation sentence. His sentence is set to end Sept. 29.
